

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A patient monitoring system comprises a computer, an input device coupled to the computer and configured to input patient information, and first and second display screens coupled to the computer. The computer displays a first portion of the patient information on the first display screen and a second portion of the patient information on the second display screen.

[illegible]